

The story of Androyus!

An eagle swiftly flew by a worried figure on a breathless horse. The figure was exhausted, he had traveling through the gloomy and windy mountains. His short brown hair blended in with the darkness, his spectacular blue eyes glistened in the moon light while his shimmering silver cape stood out against a dark light.

The gloomy woods surrounded the lone figure on a horse and a glistening lake. It looked as if loads of bodies had died in the lake of sorrow. There bright lights almost like ghosts. The misty fog was as creepy as creepy can get.

A bright light shone through a forest filled with trees and ancient symbols. Then all of a sudden rain came down because he was on the top of a great hill. He started to make the horse ride faster and faster until he entered smoke and somewhere that looked like the underworld. The figure saw a light and followed it...

Then there in front of him was a long bridge that looked like a ribcage of an ancient dinosaur. The lone figure on a brave horse felt his cape vibrating. He looked around all that he could see was a deserted landscape. There spiky arches under the bridge. After that they trotted on.

They came to an arched door with more ancient symbols on. Then entered the forbidden castle. Down the stairs they went. Suddenly the door dramatically closed behind them. The horse whinnied from fright, then everything went pitch black.

After they entered the forbidden castle there was a long spiral stair case with spikes. Finally he had reached the bottom and he and the horse then almost fell into a deep pool of magical water. After passing the lake he saw a bright light and creepy statues of strange creatures. With curiosity he jumped off his horse back and took a mysterious person off his horse. Then he walked the person over to a stone table and took off the blanket. It was a girl, her skin shimmered in the sunlight. After her rescuer stared at the beautiful girl with desperation because this was his one true love.

After putting her under the stone table witch he had heard from the legend, magic started to form a love potion. It came from above the stone table. It came from above her dead body, but some dark demons to rise from the underworld. However the brave figure, Androyus, reacted quickly and took out his sword. This was no ordinary sword but the sword of light. At that point the creepy creatures disappeared because there shone a blinding light. Androyus felt full of hope that he would bring the love of his life back safely and he wouldn't let anything or anyone stop him.

Suddenly Androyus heard thunder than a loud voice boomed "Hmm? So you are the one with the sword of light".

"Are you Hades?" asked Androyus anxiously.

"Yes," the voice beamed, "you are mortal?" he shouted.

"I know. But please help me, my girlfriend was sacrificed he soul was taken from a dreadful curse!" He wimped.

"Ha a soul that is taken may not be returned." Said Hades, "Unless you have the sword of light witch you do it is possible. But I will need something in return first."

"What do I have to do?" Asked Androyus bravely.

"Well you must destroy that statue of coloseye. Then I will bring her soul back," He beamed.

"But where is this beast?" Asked Androyus.

"Follow the sun and you will see," Replied the voice and with that he disappeared.

So of Androyus went to find the stone creature.

When he entered a dead end he knew that he was in the right place because the sun ended here. So Androyus took out his sword and climbed walls, then jumped from gap to gap until got to the creature... The creature was humongous, it obvious was a male. He was bulky with plants and rocks that were covered all on him. Coloseye held a massive bolder and wore a lot of iron, some on his back and some on his arms. The beast hade 2 bulky arms and 2 huge legs. When coloseye walked dirt and dust flew into the air and broke the ground. Then Androyus used the monsters huge brown fur to climb up to reach the back of its knee and stabbed his knee cap so that the beast bent down for Androyus to climb up. Unfortunately the beast got back up and tried to shake him off. But Androyus was strong enough to get back up again. Then Androyus shouted "321" and with that the beast was dead.

Androyus held the beasts black soul and dropped to the floor. With that Androyus teleported back his horse was waiting for him at the ancient temple and so was the love of his life. Androyus quickly put the soul back in her and to his surprise she was ALIVE!

BY AMY.